Nadine C.

Nadine's most recent finished quilt. She's been working on finishing her UFOs and her daughter Tracy made one more block after she dug up the right fabrics out of her stash.

Nadine had all but one block done of this "block of the month" project that was started decades ago.

“Here are two submissions I made for the 2023 Project Quilting challenge season.

Project Quilting 14.4, A Novel Project
The rule for this challenge was your project must be inspired by a book you read.

My pillow cover is inspired by the book Plum Island by Nelson DeMille. His books were recommended to me several years ago.

I went back and read all the ones written before Plum Island and eagerly await the new book he releases every year or two.”

“Project Quilting 14.5, Sew Not A Square
The rule was to use no square shapes in your project.

For quite some time I had a similar image in my inspiration file, just waiting for the right time to use it.

Because of the anticipation this was my favorite challenge of the 2023 season.”

“This is my Scrappy Applique goat from the January CVQ workshop.

The technique is easy and a lot of fun. I have two more patterns and can't wait to get started on those.”

Laura M.

“Size: 16 x 25

Pattern: Vino, by Laura Heine

Fabrics: mostly pulled from my stash, but purchased 2-3 FQs

Quilting: 1/4" straight lines through everything, Superior Mono Poly on top, Masterpiece in bobbin Technique: background is pieced (just 2 pieces, sky & cork table), fused collage with steam a seam 2 on the back of all pieces, wine bottle and wine glass built on a silicone mat then moved to background.”

“Started this as an improvisational design using a purchased panel.

I split the panel and added the gold strips, then couched on the variegated yarn.

It then sat on a shelf for many years until my daughter wanted a quilted item to give to a retiring member of her team at work who is also a quilter.

I added the sea green flange, black border and backing, and then "artistically" outline quilted it. Approximately 16" x 22".

Finished in February 2023.”
